Miss Mary MacFlop

I once had a friend called Miss Mary MacFlop.
She needed some food, so she went to the shop.
She took one paper bag for the things she would buy,
And off Mary went on her big shiny bike.

So Mary arrived at the shop on her bike.
It was full of the goodies which she really liked.
There were ten sorts of biscuits and colourful sweets,
And she bought all she wanted and here is the list:

There were bottles of juice, one baguette, six zucchinis,
Seven packets of crisps and a box of linguini,
Some bananas, two onions, a package of greens,
Two red apples, a carrot and three tangerines.

Mary went to the cashier with her large shopping cart,
She deserved some reward 'cause she'd worked really hard.
So she topped all that shopping with a chocolate egg,
And she put all her stuff in a brown paper bag.

Which meant bottles of juice, one baguette, six zucchinis,
Seven packets of crisps and a box of linguini,
Some bananas, two onions, a package of greens,
Two red apples, a carrot and three tangerines.

Mary was on her way and her house wasn't far,
But that moment the brown paper bag tore apart.
Poor Mary MacFlop didn't make any sound,
When her wonderful treasures fell onto the ground.

She just looked at her juice, one baguette, six zucchinis,
Seven packets of crisps and a box of linguini,
Some bananas, two onions, a package of greens,
Two red apples, a carrot and three tangerines.

Bottles broke and the juice decorated the ground,
She found apples and onions which had landed around.
Then she rescued zucchinis from a bad-tempered crow,
And repacked all her shopping and was ready to go.

In her pockets she had one baguette, six zucchinis,
In her hands — seven packets of crisps and linguini,
In her mouth Mary carried a package of greens,
On her bike — two red apples and three tangerines.

And a big chocolate egg went somewhere on the top.
'Cause she's perfect at shopping, our Mary MacFlop.
